The Hillbilly Who Wouldn't Quit

Moose McGrunt was one of Honeydew Crawfisher's most persistent suitors. The fact that he was summarily rejected each time he came to call, dampened his ardor none. He considered himself one of Shootin' Creek's most eligible bachelors, basing his claim on the fact that he'd been eligible for the longest period of time. Moose had inherited a parcel of land which the government bought from him for a crop warehouse and the the money, by hill standards, made him something of a financial tycoon. Thus, whenever he regarded his scrawny little figure in the mirror, he would beam happily and tell himself that although he didn't have everything, he had money to pay for the things he didn't have.

Moose felt sure that someday Honeydew would succumb to his romantic attentions, particularly if he could get Gumbo Galahad out of the way. Gumbo was a real stumbling block and Moose spent a lot of his time trying to figure a way to eliminate him from the Honeydew sweepstakes.

Finally, an idea occurred to him. Moose's nose flapped up and down and he shook with delight as he organized his plan in his crafty little mind. His eyes flipped over and over like a ham on a barbecue spit.

It was late that evening when Moose, dressed in his best checkered suit and wearing his wide brimmed hat, his spats, and with his pearl stick pin stabbed jauntily in his leather necktie, climbed up the trail to Honeydew's family shack. The sun had dipped behind old Foxhole Mountain an hour before and the gloom of midsummer twilight descended like a heavy mist down the mountain passes. Gumbo was on the porch, as usual, and for the first time Moose was not unhappy to see him. The sight of Honeydew playing her guitar for Gumbo gave him a feeling of pleasure rather than the usual one of annoyance. The young couple didn't know he was there until he spoke.

"Howdy, Honeydew," Moose began briskly, pointedly ignoring Gumbo. "Ah has come a courtin'."

Gumbo climbed to his feet and with an air of bored annoyance, placed his forefinger on the tip of Moose's nose. "Moose McGrunt, ah has a previous appointment with Honeydew an' ah'll thank yo' t' go 'way!"

"Ah'll just wait 'til yo' go, Gumbo Galahad. Ah'm in no hurry!" Moose replied.

For a moment Gumbo was tongue-tied. This was a new Moose McGrunt. This new attitude of smug insolence was far removed from his usual bashful almost subservient demeanor. But Gumbo was not one to be long lost for words.

"Moose," he said slowly, "unless yo' get out o' heah, ah'll overlook th' fact that ah does not approve o' violence an' ah'll roll you up like a hoop an' send you rollin' down the mountain like a wheel that had just spun loose from a wagon!"

Honeydew who'd been watching the proceedings quietly, stepped forward and put her hand on Moose's shoulder. "Moose," she said, "Gumbo was here by invitation and ah has made it plainly clear to yo' that ah does not hanker fo' yo' romantic attentions. Ah suggests yo' go court some other gal who might be fascinated by th' likes of yo'!"

Moose's jaw jutted out until the moonlight flashed on his lower teeth. He gestured with his thumb towards Gumbo without so much as a glance in his direction.

"Th' reason yo' don't like me, Honeydew, is because o' him. Because he's big an' handsome and smart while ah is little an' ugly and stupid. Wal, ah is little an' ugly an' stupid but ah is rich and ah feels that yo' would succumb to mah attentions ef he were missin' from the scene! Ah proposes to remove him from th' scene by shaming him off th' mountain so he daresn't come back."

"An' just how does yo' propose t' do this?" Gumbo asked curiously.

Moose eyed him solemnly for a moment then with the air of a judge about to pronounce sentence, he spoke.

"Ah proposes t' challenge yo' t' a bare knuckle rough an' tumble fist fight," he said. "If a weak, puny little fellow like me was t' defeat a big, strong fellow like yo', ah guess yo'd never dare show your face around here again!"

"Yas," Gumbo answered. "Ah would be so ashamed o' mah unmanliness that ah'd go t' live with th' pigs an' eat at th' trough with 'em — but o' course that can never happen!"

"It can happen an' it will happen. If you'll kindly step down th' hills so's t' spare Honeydew th' ugly an' terrible sight, ah'll proceed t' remove yo' as a romantic obstacle — as of right now."

As he spoke, little Moose plucked sharply at Gumbo's sleeve and gestured with his other hand toward a clump of scrub pine a hundred yards down the rocky incline.

An expression of suspicion crossed Gumbo's face but it soon gave way to one of amused disbelief. "Moose, yo' is like th' dawg who thought th' rattlesnake was a stick. Ah is happy to give yo' this opportunity t' learn a lesson. Le's go!"

Honeydew stayed behind as the pair headed down the hill. It was almost dark now and fireflies darted about fighting the darkness with their feeble light. Gumbo felt uneasy as they entered a tiny glade among the pines — and a moment later, he realized he had walked into a trap. Standing back among the trees were several shadowy figures. They came forward as Gumbo made a move to retreat.

"So that's where yo' courage came from!" he said to Moose. "You brought along a little help!"

"Only to hold yo', Gumbo Galahad! Ah is goin' t' administer the wompin' personally."

"But when ah tells Honeydew how yo' did it she'll . . ."

"She won't believe yo'," Moose cut in. "She'll think yo' made it up because yo' got whomped by th' likes o' me! And yo' may be very sure ah'll help t' give her that impression! Grab him men — as is payin' yo' by th' hour so ah is wastin' time an' money with talk!"

At that, the four men came forward. They moved without a sound and Gumbo felt his heart pounding wildly. Suddenly he lashed out with his fist and caught the closest assailant flush on the jaw. The others swung on him but the sudden confusion and the dim light made their accuracy poor. In a moment they were pummeling each other furiously and Gumbo withdrew to the side of the clearing unnoticed. In a matter of seconds, three of the men were stretched out on the ground. It was then that Gumbo rushed forward and with one great punch knocked the last man spinning. Then he turned towards where little Moose stood trembling with fear.

Gumbo cocked his fist back then let it fall to his side. He reached forward and picked the little man up by the waist and put him under his arm. Then, without a backward look, towards where the others were beginning to stir, he strode out of the glen and back up towards the shack. Honeydew was still sitting playing her guitar and didn't look up until she'd finished her song.

Gumbo stood the crushed Moose on his feet.

"Now tell Honeydew what yo' did, yo' little rat, afore ah . . ."

Moose, shaking with emotion, mumbled out the whole story. Tears of shame glistened from his downcast eyes, but Gumbo prodded him firmly each time he hesitated. When he was through he shook clear of Gumbo's grasp and ran from the porch. When he was about fifty yards down th' path, he turned and called back to Honeydew. There was the old confidence in his voice.

"Ah'll be comin' a courtin' again tomorrow night, Honeydew," he said.

With that, he disappeared down the hill.

DON'T WAIT UNTIL IT'S TOO LATE

While there is something new under the sun almost every day, Beauticians, Expert Hairdressers and Dermatologists are all familiar with the use of LANOLIN. In recent years, it has been believed that CHOLESTEROL is the active ingredient of LANOLIN. CHOLESTEROL is an ingredient found in all vegetables, in all animals, and in our own bodies. It is now possible for chemists to produce a synthetic CHOLESTEROL, which makes it possible to use CHOLESTEROL in this Special Hair and Scalp System. Your hair grows from the follicles located in the tissues of your scalp. The condition of your hair depends upon the normal health of your scalp. The LANOLIN Cream Shampoo which you receive with this treatment is to be used as a Shampoo to cleanse the hair and scalp of dust, dried perspiration, grime, etc.

YOU GET EVERYTHING, the JAR of JUELENE SYSTEM (SCALP and HAIR LUBRICANT), the LANOLIN CREAM SHAMPOO, the DH-12 FORMULA containing CHOLESTEROL, PLUS the SPECIAL LANOLIN COMPOUND, ALL A REAL BARGAIN AT $4.60 BUT all YOU PAY is ONLY $2.98, plus postage, FOR EVERYTHING.
